“ *Coree Reeder, Jr.,
I am thankful for knowing you on our journey. You were an encourager, awesome soloist, "back up tenor," event planner, dancer-we won a dance contest back in the day because you were my partner, and life of the event. I never thought I would hear of your passing; you will never be forgotten. I think this song attempts to summarize you, "Reach out and touch somebody's hand make this world a better place if you can." (A favorite song of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. another phenomenal Jr.)
Thanks for the memories,

*It isn't easy to see you on these pages, Coree. I am not alone in still feeling numb and in disbelief. I called him "CoCo Butter," "Uncle June," and my "Road Warrior, but most of all I called you "Friend." CoCo had a zest for life and no grass would grow under his feet. How many times did You lift my spirits with Your larger-than-life presence or to hear your voice from a much-needed long-distance call? You were always classy, and stylish, and could light up a room by just making an entrance. CoCo turned heads" whether walking in the airport on our way to a private show in Palms Springs, Ca., or escorting me in the Belton Parade. The last thing I said was that I wanted to have so many shows lined up and we would travel and see the world. How many times did you lift my spirits by saying "Hold on, Sister we need you here?" I'll see you in so many things, the rising Sun, the flowers you planted, the full Moon, and your favorite old songs. You did so much with so little and you GAVE so much because you were always yourself. I know where you are, CoCo Butter. You always spoke of prayer and GOD. We would never say "goodbye," but "later, later."
Rest well, My Road Warrior.*

LATER-LATER. Your Loretta.
