“ Memories of us, Valerie, Howard, Stephanie, Cederic, Jenifer and me playing in your Aunt Rebecca Martin and Uncle Floyd' s next door to you back yard. My Grandparents were like a second pair of parents to you. We played with each other day M -F, after school the whole time for me preschool on days I stayed with my grandparents, then 1st grade thru 12th grade. I remember when schools had segregation and we were at the black elementary school (Geer Elementary), and would walk home together, (me to grandparents next door to yours), kinda like those movies you see now where the Black kids during the 60's would walk down the rail road tracks and approach some White kids walking home in the opposite direction. Each group are wondering if the other is gonna throw rocks at them or something. But just a "Hi" from each group and we would continue home.

We played football, baseball, (all girls included) climbed trees and played hide and see, all the time. But most of all, I know you were sick and tired of digging miniature graves in the back yard as I made Y'all play a game I created called, "Undertaker". Where I had my mom's shoe boxes and pretended they were caskets, and we would have make believe funerals for birds we had shot with my bb gun, or squirrels we had found in the road. We would have the funeral on the front porch of my grandparents, then ride the casket on my tricycle to the backyard to the grave. We would do the ashes to ashes, dust to dust, then lower the shoe box into the grave with to strings for grave straps.. Cover the grave with a mound design like they used to do back then, then decorate with flowers on top. Place a little grave marker at the top. Then the next day, we would dig it up and start all over. (Smile). Then you mother would call you all in for supper. Those wonderful memories will be with me forever. My heartfelt condolences are with you and you know cousins, you can call me for anything, anytime.
