“ I used to live across the street on Dickens from Miss Mary. She would sit on the porch smiling and wishing all those that passed by her home words of comfort. When you asked her how her day had been, she would smile broadly and say "blessed"! She stated that she never felt alone as Jesus was always present. As did everyone, I would talk to her about things that troubled me in my life, and as always, she would listen and offer words of wisdom and love. What little she had, she gladly offered to others, to the point of denying herself.

When I moved to Georgia, the only thing that I missed was being with Miss Mary. Her little home had always felt to be "filled with an angelic presence". When I was there with her, I too felt blessed. There was no other place that felt like that to me and I now have that void.

Miss Mary introduced me to many things and shared her life's stories with me and I so treasure those memories.

I miss you Miss Mary but am happy that I will be able to see you again, just a little bit later.

Love you bunches,

Cheryle
